

Lawson Collection

3 Folders

1836-2011

Bibliographic Note

The Harrah family arrived in America in the early 1700's from Ireland. They traveled west, settling in Greene County, Indiana in 1830. Other unrelated Harrah families also moved into the area as well as the Osborn, Buzan, Flanagan, Fields, Simon, Himebrook and Wagoner families.

The Lawson family came to Indiana from New York in about 1830 and settled in the central part of Greene County. Their nearest neighbors were the Rhodenback, Wakefield, and Winters families.

Scope and Content

The collection contains Bible pages, a reproduction of "Echoes of the Past" by Reid Miller which includes information on the 14th Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and the Harrah and Lawson families of Greene County. Also included is correspondence between the Indiana State Archives and the donor of the collection. A land patent from the Lawson family was also part of the collection; it is currently housed at the State Archives.
